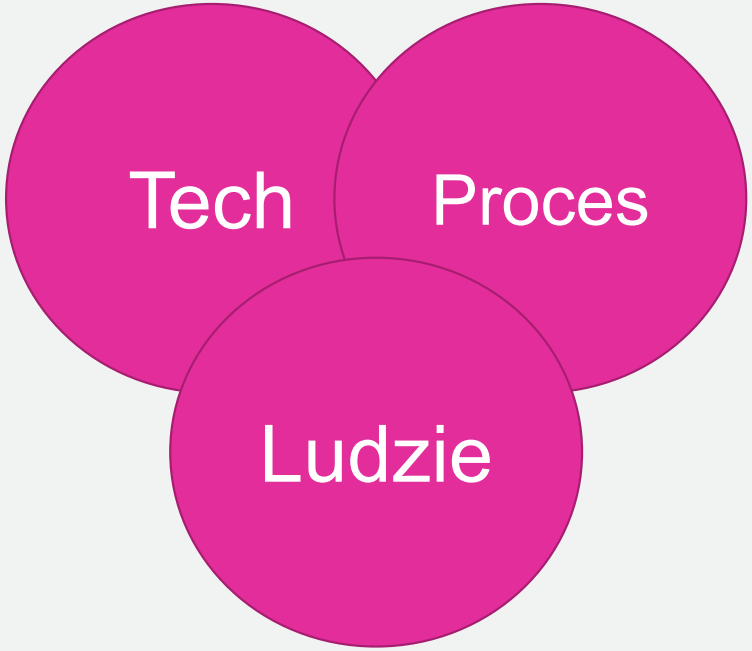
Czy legaltech jest "lekiem na całe zło" na rynku prawnym?

Legal Operations



I couldn't agree more. In other industries, it's a given that when you buy tech you'll also need to buy some implementation services to ensure the tech is properly rolled out. Yet in Legal we seem to think that all we need to do is a buy some software and be on our way. I think it's just an immature market and I'm hoping we'll get there

So very true Mat Jakubowski - for tech to have an impact it needs to be nurtured and supported, only then will it embed in the organisation

Thank you so much for writing this - I've been having a mantra of "Apple is ruining my digitalisation efforts" in my head for months now 😂 In short: apple products with their incredibly low threshold to start using the products and the instant connection to other apple products sets unrealistic expectations on other technology that has to be introduced

Love this way of thinking Mat Jakubowski - we can always be doing something to improve our function's effectiveness. Could be as small as a word template hosting on a SharePoint drive with comment bubble instructions for the biz team user, instead of being a gatekeeper and requiring all requests come into legal.

YES! I love the last point about applying legal project management. Sometimes innovation comes from a big leap, most times it comes from the compound impacts of many small changes. T

You nailed the tricky part of innovation - innovation requires thoughtful experimentation. There is no one way to do it. Great post Mat Jakubowski.

Totally agree! I would like to try or adopt a legal tech tool (trivial example: contract automation) but - since I'm Italian native speaker and I work mainly with Italian clients - I clash with the language barrier of all the solutions I encounter (English only) 🤔
What about Esperanto? May be the solution! 🤣

I already had an appreciation for European lawyers, but this post made me realize a lot of them have to "translate" documents multiple times--from Legalese to Plain English to the local language.

100% agree Mat - it is super important that non-English jurisdiction based technologists focus not only on English content, but also on spreading the 💚 in our native languages as well.

Very well said, Mat! It's all about collaboration and jointly discovering best solutions.

If our stakeholders aren't brought along with a story that resonates for them, it is typically quite difficult to gain buy in with data or processes alone.

Like you said, ask questions and combine on solutions that meet the story that stakeholders relates to. Then build in the processes underneath.

Dziękuję
